

Sentence construction 2

1	Oil is skimmed from the surface. This is done using a boom. The oil is pumped into a tank. It is then recycled.
2	The grapes are harvested. The grapes are crushed. This releases the pulp and seeds. The mixture is fermented. This takes three weeks.
3	The glass is cut to size. It is inspected. This determines if it has any imperfections. It is heated to over 600°C. It is cooled. This last step is called quenching.
4	This procedure is now fairly routine. It is designed to repair damaged heart tissue. A vessel is taken from the leg. The vessel is grafted to the aorta and the coronary artery beyond the narrowed area. This allows the blood to flow to the heart muscle.
5	Water from rain or melted snow percolates into the ground through cracks. It is heated by the underlying rocks. he heated water can reach temperatures well above boiling point. The water does not boil. It becomes superheated. This involves very high pressures. Eventually it bursts out of the ground. This is an explosive eruption.
6	The ABS controller senses that a wheel is about to lock. It changes the pressure in the brakelines. This is done automatically. It unlocks the brakes. The brake performance is maximised.
7	The databases tend to preselect papers published in English. Research published in other languages is under-represented.
8	The warm, moist air rises above the surface of the sea. This creates an area of low pressure.
9	The system can collect up to 2,500 gallons per day. This provides enough to supply a small community. The supply is cheap and environmentally friendly.
10	The laser light forms an EM field. This slows the vibration of the atoms.
11	Manufacturing falls. Demand for business loans falls. This leaves banks with strong lending capacity.
12	Cold air from the Pacific mixes with warm coastal air. This forms fog and clouds
13	Computer viruses infect executable files. An executable files is run. The computer is damaged.
14	The researcher supposedly manipulated the data. An apparent effect was created. None had previously existed.
15	Rainfall levels plummeted. A slow but steady loss of grasses ensued. The region was transformed into a desert.

Sentence construction 2

9	The system can collect up to 2,500 gallons per day. This provides enough to supply a small community. The supply is cheap and environmentally friendly.
10	The laser light forms an EM field. This slows the vibration of the atoms.
11	Manufacturing falls. Demand for business loans falls. This leaves banks with strong lending capacity.
12	Cold air from the Pacific mixes with warm coastal air. This forms fog and clouds
1	Oil is skimmed from the surface. This is done using a boom. The oil is pumped into a tank. It is then recycled.
2	The grapes are harvested. The grapes are crushed. This releases the pulp and seeds. The mixture is fermented. This takes three weeks.
3	The glass is cut to size. It is inspected. This determines if it has any imperfections. It is heated to over 600°C. It is cooled. This last step is called quenching.
4	This procedure is now fairly routine. It is designed to repair damaged heart tissue. A vessel is taken from the leg. The vessel is grafted to the aorta and the coronary artery beyond the narrowed area. This allows the blood to flow to the heart muscle.
5	Water from rain or melted snow percolates into the ground through cracks. It is heated by the underlying rocks. he heated water can reach temperatures well above boiling point. The water does not boil. It becomes superheated. This involves very high pressures. Eventually it bursts out of the ground. This is an explosive eruption.
6	The ABS controller senses that a wheel is about to lock. It changes the pressure in the brakelines. This is done automatically. It unlocks the brakes. The brake performance is maximised.
7	The databases tend to preselect papers published in English. Research published in other languages is under-represented.
8	The warm, moist air rises above the surface of the sea. This creates an area of low pressure.
13	Computer viruses infect executable files. An executable files is run. The computer is damaged.
14	The researcher supposedly manipulated the data. An apparent effect was created. None had previously existed.
15	Rainfall levels plummeted. A slow but steady loss of grasses ensued. The region was transformed into a desert.